AND WHAT PEOPLE SAY . . .

On behalf of all of the members of the Bellmore-Merrick professional staff who had the opportunity to attend your workshops on Service Learning and Community Safety, I extend my deepest gratitude. It was a wonderful experience which left each of us motivated and enthusiastic. As I said to a colleague on the way home, I am now able to look at the things we do in and out of the classroom from a very different perspective. One could not ask for more.

Arnie Goldstein, Assistant Superintendent, Bellmore-Merrick Elementary School District, Long Island, New York

Cathy Kaye is one of the most wise and dynamic resources on service learning. Her knowledge of strategies, resources, people, and ideas in service learning on almost any topic is encyclopedic. Unlike an encyclopedia, though, she is engaging and inspiring. Her workshops engage everyone in important questions about how and why to do service learning.

Dave Donahue, Ph.D., Mills College

Cathy Berger Kaye is, in a word, DYNAMIC. Her presentation style is vibrant and engaging, her knowledge extensive. She can easily move from talking about projects for K-12 students to suggesting how to infuse high quality service-learning into college and university curriculums. As a conference presenter, she is the morning get-the-crowd-going and the late afternoon picker-upper--she simply wows her audience.

Linda S. Hargreaves, Program Coordinator, Undergraduate Studies, University of Central Florida

As a career educator who has been to more workshops than I can count, I can honestly say that this was the most outstanding one I have attended. Your passion for service learning and your expertise, combined with your amazing skills in presenting, resulted in a workshop that is motivating and inspiring. You have certainly channeled our energies and given new direction to the power of education to change the world.

Anita Meinbach, Ed.D., University of Miami School of Education, Miami, Florida

I attended your service learning session at the National Middle School Association in Atlanta and came away with many valuable ideas (as well as your book!). Thanks so much for the inspiring presentation!

Barb Matheny, teacher, Ohio

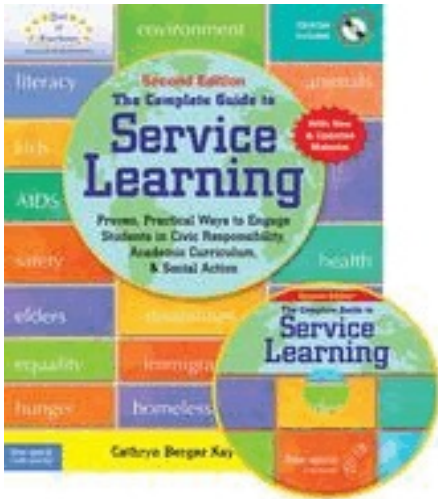

Cathryn has completed at least six service learning professional development training workshops within the last year for our New York State Service Learning sub-grantees, regional networks and statewide institutes. Her presentations were well-organized, informative, energizing and customized to meet the specific training and classroom needs of the teacher participants. The reviews were superb. We are very pleased with the end results and are making plans to use her for many future trainings. I would highly recommend her as a presenter or trainer for any situation.

Fran Hollen, New York State Learn and Serve America Coordinator

Do you want service learning activities and projects for middle and high school kids that make a difference on the local, national, and global scene? This Service Learning: How To Take Action workbook series is what you need. Kids explore what others in the world (including young people) have done and are doing to address the issues, find out their community needs, and develop a service learning plan. The workbooks include facts, quotations, real-life examples, write-on pages, resources, a note to adults and inspiration to get out there and make a difference.

Young people across the globe are responding to the earth's water crisis by transforming their ideas and energy into action. The call to service is being sounded by world leaders such as President Barack Obama, Jane Goodall, and Philippe Cousteau—a champion of the new generation of social activists. Kids are answering the call to help our environment by being green, and to rescue our oceans and waterways by going blue. Going Blue seeks to inform young people about the issues surrounding our waters and provide the strategies and examples they need to see themselves as change agents. The book is divided into the five stages of service learning: investigation, preparation, action, reflection, and demonstration. With the aid of lively photos and illustrations, along with practical suggestions and activities, kids plan and do a meaningful service project that benefits our planet's water system. Written with Philippe Cousteau and EarthEcho International. Available September 2010
